VISTA POINT ADVISORS

I. Executive Summary

Executive Summary

Sector Overview

- As of 2025, the Global Human Resources Technology sector (“HR Tech”) market is set to grow from $40b in 2025 to $63b by 2030, growing at a CAGR of 9.4%.
- HR organizations are focusing on efficiency and cost discipline, investing in platforms that streamline workflows, improve data accuracy, and deliver clear, measurable ROI.
- Companies are prioritizing skills visibility, workforce planning, and employee self-service tools to manage hiring uncertainty, close talent gaps, and support more flexible workforce models.

Q4 2025 Report Themes

Organizations are shifting from broad HR tech expansion to targeted investments that improve efficiency, workforce visibility, and measurable business outcomes.

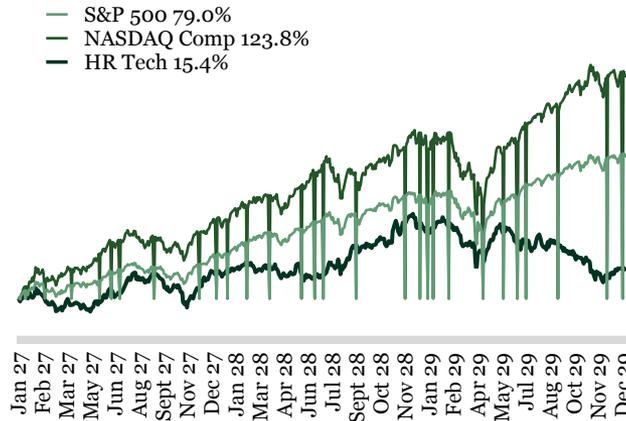

HR Tech M&A remained active in Q4 2025, with deal flow concentrated in AI-enabled recruiting, workforce analytics, employee experience, and core HCM platforms as consolidation continued.

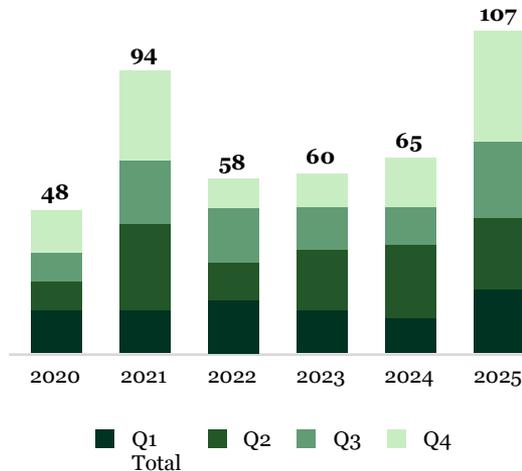

Investment activity favoured scaled HR tech platforms with clear AI monetization and strong revenue visibility, reflecting disciplined capital deployment and a focus on durability over growth at any cost.

Industry Trends and Outlook (1/2)

Global HR Tech Market Size ($b)

- The HR Tech market is rapidly growing in 2025, driven by AI tools that automate hiring, reviews, and career development.
- Organizations are shifting from fragmented HR systems to consolidated, interoperable platforms, enabling real-time analytics and agile decision-making.
- Many companies are planning to increase spending on HR tech, especially AI-enabled solutions that power recruitment, analytics, and workforce planning.
- HR and IT functions are expected to work more closely in 2026 as systems converge and data flows become critical for analytics, experience platforms, and AI operations.

2025 Outlook Trends

Talent Intelligence Becomes Core HR Platform

Talent intelligence platforms centralize workforce data to track skills, talent trends, and availability, becoming essential for workforce planning and informed hiring decisions.

Skills-First Hiring Becomes Standard

Organizations are shifting to skills-based hiring, using skills taxonomies and internal mobility platforms to improve job matching, reskilling, and talent redeployment.

AI & Machine Learning in Recruitment

AI and machine learning are reshaping recruitment by automating tasks, improving hiring decisions, and enhancing candidate experience through predictive analytics, smart screening, bias reduction, and AI chatbots.

ROI & Cost Discipline

Organizations are moving away from feature-heavy HR tech and prioritizing solutions that demonstrate clear business impact, measurable value, and strong return on investment.

Shift from AI Awareness to AI Execution

Employers are moving from AI experimentation to operational use, focusing on governance, workflow integration, and delivering measurable outcomes from AI initiatives.

Hybrid & Cloud-Based HR Platforms

Companies rely on cloud-based HR systems to support remote and hybrid work while enabling payroll, employee self-service, learning, and collaboration tools.

Employee Experience Platforms

Employee experience platforms unify learning, feedback, and wellness tools to improve engagement, productivity, and overall workforce well-being.

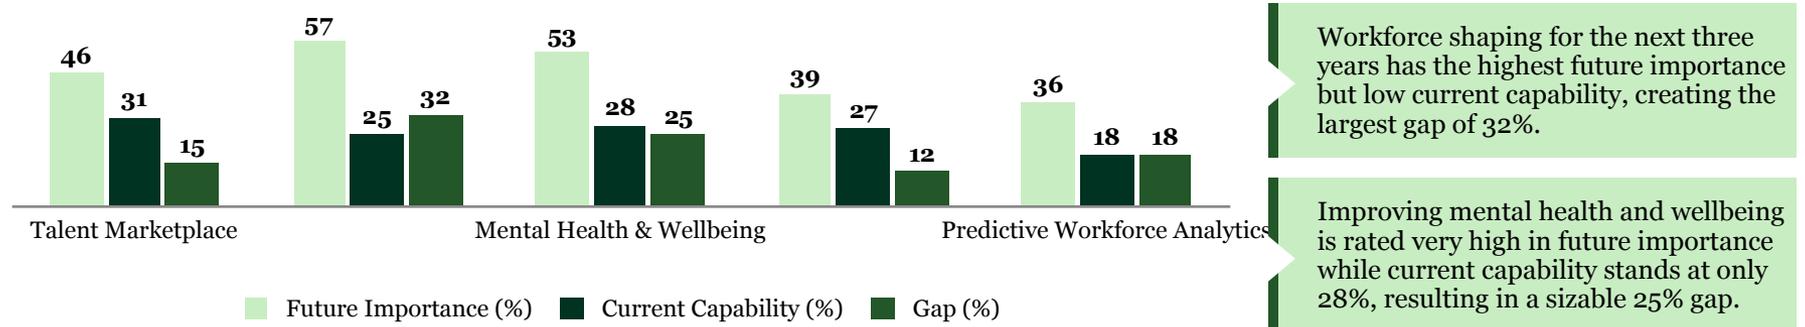

More Personalized HR Self-Service

Modern HR self-service tools provide personalized dashboards, AI assistance, and tailored recommendations to empower employees and reduce administrative workload.

Industry Trends and Outlook (2/2)

HR Technology Priorities vs. Current Capability Gaps

Key HR Technology Adoption & Investment Trends

Compliance and Regulatory Changes in HR Tech

- Wage Transparency Laws Drive HR Tech Changes

New pay transparency laws across several U.S. states in 2025 require employers to include salary ranges in job postings, pushing HR tech systems to enable automated pay disclosure, tracking, and compliance reporting.
- Payroll and Compliance Complexity Intensifies

Compliance in payroll, time tracking, and worker classification is tightening, pushing HR tech vendors to add automation, tools, and I-9 (Work authorization) recordkeeping.
- AI Regulation Drives HR Tech Compliance

Growing state and federal regulation in 2025 is increasing AI compliance demands in HR, requiring bias audits, transparency, and documentation amid evolving federal standards.

Q4 25 HR Tech Companies Performance

Public Companies Performance (2/3)

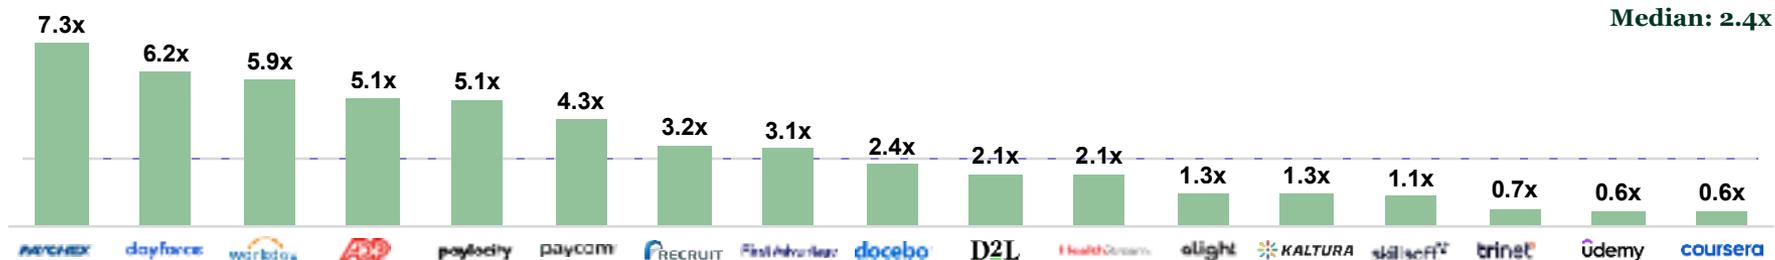

Q4 2025 showed a widening gap between HR Tech and broader markets. While major indices rose on large-cap and AI momentum, HR Tech lagged amid valuation resets, slower hiring, and cautious enterprise software spending. Public SaaS multiples also came under pressure as investors weighed AI-driven disruption risks, prompting a rotation toward scaled, profitable platforms with clear AI monetization and a focus on efficiency and durable growth heading into 2026.

Index Growth	2024	Q4 24	Q4 25

HR Tech M&A Activity (1/6)

HR Tech M&A activity stayed strong in Q4 2025, with record deal volumes but more moderate overall deal values. The market shifted toward frequent, strategic bolt-on acquisitions across AI-driven recruiting, talent intelligence, employee experience, and core HCM platforms. Strategics led activity, with financial sponsors selectively active, signalling continued consolidation momentum in HR Tech heading into 2026.

HR Tech Investment Activity (1/7)

HR Tech investment stayed steady in Q4 2025, with investors maintaining a disciplined focus on quality, scalability, and proven execution. Venture and growth capital concentrated around established, AI-enabled platforms demonstrating strong revenue visibility and operational efficiency. Although overall deal volume remained measured, capital deployment into scaled businesses signalled sustained confidence in sector fundamentals. Investors continue to favour durable enterprise value, recurring revenue models, and differentiated technology as the primary drivers of selective funding momentum.
